A Message from the Executive Director

Dear Friends of WINGS,

As you read through all of the exciting things that have happened at WINGS over the last year, please know that it would not be possible without all of the support we receive from the community. WINGS continues to operate all of our programs and services with less than 20% coming from government sources. We truly rely on you!

WINGS experienced another year of growth as the staff and Board moved forward with the implementation of the strategic plan. As a part of that plan, WINGS acquired a new administration building located in Rolling Meadows. Our new home provides the space needed to run current operations and to plan for future growth. In addition to a new home, we also have a fresh new look with an updated logo that represents growth and change for WINGS. We held our first ever Salsa Night to support our Latina outreach programs and it was a resounding success!

With the support of the community, we were able to open outreach offices in several new locations including St. Alexius Women and Children's Hospital, Hoffman Estates Police Department, Hoffman Estates Health and Human Services office and Mount Prospect Community Center. As we move forward, WINGS plans to expand into more areas and is currently working with the City of Chicago on a new shelter on the southwest side of the city.

Last year, WINGS homes provided 57,652 nights of shelter to 742 women and children. Clinical outreach staff helped 288 people with 3,762 hours of counseling and support. Our ALAS (Spanish for WINGS) program reached 102 suburban Latina women needing help out of an abusive situation.

We thank our donors for all you have given to help us meet our mission. In addition, we give gratitude to the volunteers, Board and staff who work tirelessly in all areas of the organization including our Safe House, homes, offices and resale stores. WINGS would not be able to provide the quality and quantity of services without everyone working together to make a difference.

Thank you for joining us to give flight to hopes and dreams!

Sincerely,

Rebecca A. Darr

Executive Director

The Power to Succeed

Sharee's Story

"My mentor inspired me to do everything, including going to school. I'm blessed to have her in my life."

Sharee Murphy, WINGS' 2012 David Hill award winner, is a tribute to the notion that with hard work, spirit and a positive attitude, a woman from an abusive childhood can transition into a purposeful life. After graduating from high school, Sharee became pregnant and needed help but knew that she could not subject her baby to the same treatment that she had received at home. She was alone with nowhere to go.

In 2003, Sharee entered WINGS with her beautiful son, Joshua. With the support of WINGS' housing and counseling programs, Sharee gained the education necessary to become a Certified Nursing Assistant at a suburban hospital. She continued to work, study and care for Joshua until she successfully graduated from WINGS.

Through WINGS' Project Lifeline program, Sharee was matched with her mentor Judy Peterson in 2007. Together they worked to enroll Sharee in a training program, and today Sharee is a Certified Respiratory Therapist at a local children's hospital working with chronically ill and developmentally disabled children. She keeps pictures on her phone of all of the kids she's helping and lovingly tells each of their stories.

Sharee says she is grateful for the WINGS program and the opportunities it provided. She won't dwell on the past but enjoys talking about Judy and their special relationship: "She is more than a friend; she's like my family. Judy inspired me to do everything, including going to school. I'm blessed to have her in my life." Adds Judy, "To watch Sharee begin to trust me has been beneficial to me. Building our strong relationship has added to my life and to my husband's. He has befriended her son and joins us in our meetings. Sharee and Joshua have become part of our family!"

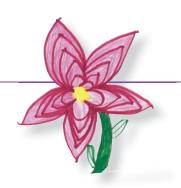

WINGS Programs

For 28 years, WINGS has provided services for women and children faced with domestic violence and homelessness. Each woman who comes to WINGS has her own unique needs. Some women require an overnight stay at our Safe House, while others are best served with our Transitional Apartments or with Permanent Supportive Housing to accommodate disabilities.

This flexible, integrated approach makes it possible for WINGS to provide ongoing services based on a woman's level of self-sufficiency. A woman initially can be placed in any one of the programs below and – as her needs change – move on to a different program that addresses her current situation.

WINGS Programs: Moving Forward

- The Safe House provides emergency shelter for women and children for up to 90 days.
- Stage One Shared Living Homes accommodate two or three families in a single residence. The women work on job skills and resumes and look for employment.
- Stage Two Transitional Apartments are available for up to two years. Here, women focus on money management, parenting and life skills.
- Individualized Transitional Housing provides women with financial and program support. Subsidies are available for help with rent, mortgages and child care.
- Permanent Supportive Housing gives disabled women secure, long-term housing with optional supportive services.
- Graduates of WINGS are eligible for ongoing services that include career counseling and use of WINGS' food pantry.
- Clinical Services provides psychological counseling by licensed professionals and interns.
- Outreach Programs educate community leaders about responses to and prevention of domestic violence.

Art Heals Hearts at Safe House

Art is one of many coping tools. WINGS is fortunate to have three special women who provide their different art specialties to women and children at the Safe House.

Children's Services Coordinator and trained art therapist Adrienne Lewis provides individual and group art therapy to the children at the Safe House, as well as some families if needed. "It allows for a child to be actively engaged in the therapy process and to not feel pressure to fill the therapy session with conversation," said Adrienne. One recent project was to make wish sticks. The children would write down a wish or hope that they have, wrap the paper around a stick, and embellish it. According to Adrienne, art therapy helps children express their feelings in a safe way.

Family Advocate Bruna Srb is a practicing artist who teaches a discipline known as art healing every Tuesday. Art healing is held as a family group session with drawing, sculpting and writing activities that empower clients to heal from the domestic violence experience. The class is also a way for the families to bond. "Art healing time can be essential in bringing the family together, fostering greater trust, respect, and healthy communication," said Bruna.

Volunteer Pamela Litz-Blevons, an interior designer by profession, leads a monthly class at the Safe House called "Creative Eskape." The class is an hour of time when residents can escape the negative thoughts regarding the abusive situation they are in and focus on doing artwork. The crafts are based on themes according to holidays or seasons. In one project, for example, shelter guests made small containers in which they planted seeds in order to watch flowers grow.

Resale Trunk Shows Focus on High-End Fashion

WINGS has hit the road with a series of trunk shows and boutique events that bring the best resale merchandise to new audiences.

Over the last several years, these special shows have become a valuable income addition to the agency's three brick-and-mortar stores. Volunteers are trained to separate higher-end designs from the rest of the accessories and apparel donated at the stores. The agency's Director of Resale Operations, Robin Bergbreiter, also conducts targeted donation drives with local clubs and businesses. "My motto is, if you give us good stuff, we can do great things," said Robin. The boutique-quality items are stored in a locked room at the back of the Schaumburg resale store and are pulled out for various events throughout the year. To keep the inventory fresh, Robin and her team take items that remain unsold after a couple of trunk shows and put them on the sales floor at Schaumburg, Niles or Palatine.

The most lucrative boutique sale takes place – as one might expect – at WINGS' annual Resale Fashion Show. A close second is a trunk show hosted by Aon in conjunction with the insurance company's own fashion show fundraiser benefitting WINGS. Another annual favorite is a trunk show featuring vintage furs that can be acquired for as little as $250.

When searching for gently-used designer merchandise, Robin approaches companies and groups that have "a heart for our cause." She added, "I try to impart on them, please think about what you'd give your sister or your best friend, and that's the stuff that we want."

Director of Resale Robin Bergbreiter and her volunteers run the resale boutiques at fundraisers and community events.

A Night to Remember

WINGS most memorable event, A Night to Remember (previously known as A Night for Reneé), was held on Saturday, January 26, 2013, at the nation's 10th largest convention and trade show facility, the Donald E. Stephens Convention Center in Rosemont. The evening included dinner, dancing, a brief program, entertainment, raffles and silent auctions. More than 800 people attended - a new event record for WINGS! A Night to Remember is a high-energy evening that focuses on honoring the lives of extraordinary women who have been through extraordinary situations of domestic violence.

Victor Pacini, a local entertainer, created this event after the 2001 death of his sister, Reneé, as a way to remember her life and also to raise awareness of the problem of domestic violence in our communities. An all-volunteer organizing committee helps to make this event a success year after year with their dedication and passion. In 2013, with the event rebranded as A Night to Remember, WINGS honored two very special women who lost their lives due to domestic violence. Renee Pacini and Angelita Galvan were loved by so many and will never be forgotten.

Victor Pacini performs on stage at "A Night to Remember."

Program Accomplishments

We think sometimes that poverty is only being hungry, naked and homeless. The poverty of being unwanted, unloved and uncared for is the greatest poverty. We must start in our own homes to remedy this kind of poverty.

~Mother Teresa

"It gave me a place to pause the CHAOS in my life and redirect my energy towards a positive direction."

"Because of the WINGS program, my children and I have become self-sufficient. By WINGS giving us shelter and hope for the future, we have become a stronger unit as a whole."

"Without WINGS, God only knows how my son would be now.
WINGS is a blessing for people like me."

"WINGS gave me time to heal emotionally from physical and emotional abuse.

Time to realize that I am not the worthless person I had been told that I was."

"I would never think I could be on my own before but WINGS really helped me."

Celebration of Courage

Each year in June, WINGS holds the Celebration of Courage, an emotional event that recognizes the goals that families have achieved during their time in the program.

Every client in attendance is applauded for some accomplishment: a diploma or certification, a pay raise, or a new job. Special recognition goes out to the women who have completed WINGS' two-year transitional program. The Celebration is a "graduation" for them. In a typical year, three to seven graduates are celebrated along with all the other women and children. In the 2013 fiscal year, graduates moved on to safe,

100 percent of

The children are also acknowledged at the Celebration. They receive certificates for achievements such as completing the sixth grade, making the football team, showing good manners and more.

About 100 people attended this year's Celebration of Courage, which was held at Chandler's Chop House in Schaumburg. Staff, board members and volunteers sat among the women and children. Those who wanted to speak went up on stage to share their touching stories.

Manager of Supportive and Children's Services Donna Treslo has worked for WINGS for 10 years. "The Celebration gives them hope. It provides encouragement to take those baby steps," said Donna. The Celebration of Courage is growing every year and the families' accomplishments continue to be life-changing.

"The Celebration gives clients hope. It provides encouragement to take those baby steps."

Corporate Compassion

Colliers International

Jeannine Reed, Senior Vice President and Director of Operations/Chicago for Colliers International, found WINGS in 2004 while looking for a local charity that aligned with her personal interests. She first volunteered to coach WINGS clients on how to find and interview for jobs. Later she found a way to make an even bigger impact: using Colliers International's talented engineers to improve WINGS' homes and apartments.

For the past several years, WINGS has made wish lists for its shelter units. And Colliers has responded. As Jeannine said, "Each house needs something different such as carpentry, plumbing, or painting. Our folks are so efficient and know what they're doing. They enjoy donating their time to such a worthwhile cause."

Their efforts are encouraged by Colliers International, a leader in global real estate that offers comprehensive property management services. Community is one of its core values along with a compassion for those in need. Each year, all employees are given paid time off to volunteer hours and in-kind services. Some individual employees have also made monetary contributions to WINGS.

Most recently, Jeannine has worked with customers to donate unused warehouse space for a two-month period to host WINGS' holiday gift program. Over 50 Colliers employees set up the logistics to create a "factory system" to wrap and store presents. The team also donated gifts and food for WINGS families.

Jeannine says she is "thrilled to be a part of an organization like WINGS and excited to continue to grow and contribute in new ways." WINGS is equally thrilled to have Jeannine and the other talented volunteers at Colliers International: wonderful models of corporate caring and giving.
